Puerto Rico is One of the World's Best Island Escapes
National Geographic Traveler magazine includes the Island on its prestigious list

SAN JUAN, PR, December 12, 2018 – National Geographic Traveler added Puerto Rico in the World's Best Island Escapes list. The renowned magazine said Puerto Rico is “one of the Caribbean idylls that have bounded back after 2017 hurricane season”.

“Travelers are once again heading to Dorado Beach, A Ritz-Carlton Reserve, newly reopened after a year’s refurbishment. A mile of scalloped beaches edges the 1,400-acre property, the former estate of Laurance S. Rockefeller, which has three golf courses, 11 miles of bike trails, and 114 oceanfront rooms,” according to the publication.

“Take a dip in the beach club’s vast pool or, if you’re in a ground-floor room, a private plunge pool. Fronted by a nearly 100-year-old ficus tree, the five-acre Spa Botánico is a sanctuary with treehouse treatment spaces, a water circuit of hot and cold temperatures, and an herb-filled apothecary for custom aromatherapy”, Nat Geo added.

Brad Dean, Discover Puerto Rico’s CEO, said “this is another important achievement for Puerto Rico. National Geographic is a world-known publication and we’re proud to be part of its coveted list, which invites visitors to discover the diversity of Puerto Rico.”
